What type of volunteers do we seek

We seek volunteers with an inclination towards environment and agriculture, agroecology, local food chains, food cooperatives, community building in local food systems, however it is not a prerequisite of a participant we are able to accept people with no experience in this field.

We seek people that are open to new relationships and people and keen on learning new approaches and subjects. We seek volunteers with different backgrounds that might enhance the issues mentioned above with new, different perspectives.

Volunteers hosted by our organization should be interested to develop themselves and learn new approaches in one of the following fields: environment-friendly farming and craftsmanship, marketing and public relations, children education. They should be interested in learning how to gain basic organizational skills, good communication and self-management. The target of our organization is to help volunteers to unlock their potentials and find their place in the world.
